

Kenneth P. Price, Ph.D.

Psychologist. Author. Keeper of a family story.

Kenneth P. Price, Ph.D., is a psychologist and the author of Separated Together. He is married to Gloria, the daughter of Abe and Sonia Huberman. His account draws on family memories, interviews, letters, and archival research, bringing a son-in-law's perspective to a history that continued long after the war.

An intimate perspective

Kenneth knew Abe and Sonia as his wife Gloria's parents. In Separated Together, the wartime account gives way to the family gatherings, relationships, and acts of generosity he witnessed himself.

Conversations with Kenneth

The unexpected seven-year separation

The family's life after reunion

Turning letters and memories into a book

Listening to stories across generations

Kenneth studied psychology at Brandeis University and earned his doctorate at SUNY Stony Brook. His professional background includes teaching and clinical and forensic psychology.
